Non-Intervention.

The Signs are increasing every day of the determination of the Democratic party North to discard from their political creed the doctrines of the Wilmot Proviso, and to adopt the constitutional principle of strict non-interference upon the slavery question.

"This letter is the ablest and soundest political document we have seen from any quarter since the days of Gen. Jackson. We are not without hope that it will have an influence for good upon the Democratic Conciliation Convention."

The Pittsburg Post says: "To assume that Congress has the power to establish slavery where it does not exist, only makes the converse of the proposition true, that Congress have the power to abolish slavery where it does exist."

The Pennsylvania, the leading Democratic paper in the State, in conclusion of a long article upon the subject, says: "For our own part, we shall stand fast to the Constitution and to the Union; and we believe the first can only be saved from perversion, as the last from ultimate and total destruction, by clinging steadily to the great principle of non-intervention on the slave question, and by opposing the intrigues of those who are banded foes, either openly or secretly, of both the Constitution and the Union."

The Banjo (Maine) Democrat, speaking of non-intervention as a principle recognized by the Democrats of the Legislature of that State, says:

"The last resolution passed by the Democrats of the Maine Legislature, touching the slavery question, is in favor of toleration, and against interpolating abolitionism into the Democratic creed."

But what strikes us as very singular is the following from the St. Louis Union, Col. Benton's leading organ, upon the subject of the Proviso. While feebly maintaining the right of Congress to legislate, it holds the following language:

"If a proviso should ever be passed, applying to these territories, it would be no ways binding on the people in forming their State Governments—for if they choose to incorporate slavery in their State governments, they would have a right so to do. As, therefore, no Democrat thinks that a proviso of any kind, for or against slavery, passed by Congress in regard to the territory, could have any binding force perpetually on the people, but should be subject to any alteration they thought proper to make when their State Constitution should be adopted, it cannot be necessary for such an abstraction, as it is in the present case, to be insisted on, when the Union may be endangered by so doing. For our Mexican territories it is not only wholly UNNECESSARY AND INEXPEDIENT, BUT IS POSITIVELY MISCHIEVOUS IN ITS EFFECTS UPON THE HARMONY OF THE UNION TO LEGISLATE ON SLAVERY."

The above are a few of the Democratic expressions in regard to the slavery question; and we are strongly induced to believe that the Proviso will be abandoned by the whole party. If so, it will scarcely pass Congress, provided Southern Whigs are true, as doubtless they will be, to the interests of their constituency.
